Uyuni (December - March)

On a three-day tour you can expect to see and experience the following:

- The Salar de Uyuni!
- The train graveyard... a strange, but cool homage to Uyuni's commercial past.
- A night in a hotel made out of blocks of salt.
- The Laguna Colorado, Laguna Verde, and other Altiplano salt lakes that are home to Andean flamingos.
- The colorful Dalí and Siloli deserts.
- A bubbling, steaming geyser field.
- Unique Bolivian wildlife, such as Darwin's rheas, vicuñas, vizcachas, and, of course, flamingos.
- A dip in hot springs.

A photograph of a section of the Inca Trail. The path is paved with large, irregular grey stones set into a bed of green grass. The trail curves through a rugged, rocky terrain with sparse yellow and brown vegetation. In the background, there are more hills and mountains under a clear sky.
